

Aug. 31, 2007

Tallahassee Film Festival Named Estrella

Tallahassee's film festival has been without a name for months now, but the wait is over and finally a star is born.

Forty seven percent of voters chose Estrella as the name for Tallahassee's first ever film festival. Estrella is Spanish for star.

Organizers of the film fest say the name is fitting because of the Spanish history and impact on Florida. They also say since the city of Tallahassee already uses stars for many of its logos it was a perfect match.

"Tallahassee is reaching for the stars and we are going to showcase all our regional assets, which all of them are stars and we may find a very genuine true star during those three days," said Estrella organizer Gloria Pugh.

Estrella takes place next year, May 15 through 17.