

WTLX TALLAHASSEE/THOMASVILLE

July 25, 2007

Tally Film Festival Needs a Name

Tallahassee will host a three-day festival celebration professional and emerging talent in the film, music, and related arts industries May 15-17, 2008.

Creative minds should email suggestions to kccitallahassee@gmail.com by July 27, 2007. Suggestions will be narrowed down to the top three choices, and the entire community will vote to determine the winner. Once a winner is determined, the team will ask local artists and graphic designers to submit possible logos and artwork to represent the festival and its new name.

The winning designer will receive recognition for their work at the event and either an in-kind sponsorship for their business, or two free tickets to all festival events, plus VIP treatment.

Throughout the weekend, the event will also feature educational seminars and workshops such as, "so you want to be a filmmaker?" hosted by FSU, and a variety of film presentations, including award-winning films from well-known film festivals and those produced by college students and local residents. The Leon County Schools Foundation will also host events and ceremonies throughout the weekend to promote K -12 film and arts-related studies.

To learn more about KCCI and the yet-to-be-named festival, visit kccitallahassee.wordpress.com or email kccitallahassee@gmail.com